

John Wellwood

100% Effective

John is the managing director of 100% Effective, which launched in 1999.

He started the company based on his extensive experience as an international Master Black Belt working with companies across several continents and spanning several decades.

He has first-hand experience training thousands of people in Lean Six Sigma, and has seen the organisations he worked with generate millions of pounds in savings as a result of his training and consultancy.

EXPERIENCE

John started his career as a European Consultant with Kodak in 1990, where he first developed his passion for Business Improvement. In this role he worked with people from all levels, from the boardroom down, providing key strategic insights.

He then moved to a consultancy role at KPMG, where he ran accounts for companies such as Castrol and CLL. John then transformed an automotive company from a traditional authoritarian organisation to a modern flow line effective manufacturing facility where he had the chance to apply all of the Business Improvement learning. His career then took him to Invensys where he was trained as a Master Black Belt and headed up the global deployment of Lean Six Sigma across three of the four business units, managing over 20 Black Belts across three continents.

With so much experience in consistently successful Business Improvement deployment, John decided to start his own company and, in 1999, what is now 100% Effective was born. John's drive for improving businesses has delivered millions of pounds in savings to our clients, and is directly responsible for our training courses being some of the most robust on the market.

PROFESSIONAL ACHIEVEMENTS

When it comes to Master Black Belts, John is among the best. Before starting 100% Effective, John spent a decade working as a Business Improvement consultant for some of the world's biggest names. In the 15 years 100% Effective has been operating, he has remained hands on and continues to work closely with clients to achieve exceptional results and ensure they always see a significant return.

- Has worked with companies across five continents to embed Business Improvement

- and successfully deploy Lean Six Sigma
